Not the usual suspects

DIRECTOR VERA, CHIEF OF THE National Capital Region Police Office, admitted the gear of bombings during the last few days is an emboldenment to him. "No other Manila police chief," he said, "I feel emboldened to what has been happening in the last few days."

He has every reason to feel that way, and that goes for every member of the police organization, especially those assigned to the metropolitan area. A week after the first bomb exploded at the Crepille building in Makati City on June 6, police investigators remain clueless about the identity of the bomber or bombers and their reasons for carrying it out. What they got instead were more bomb-suspecting—and still under their very noses.

On Sunday an explosion rocked the police station at 14-second Bonifacio in Manila. That very same morning, when a bomb ripped a hole being used by the PNP as a multi-purpose station and jail, which was parked at the Filinvest point in Quezon City. That last Tuesday another bomb exploded under a special Weapons and Tactics van parked inside Camp Bagumbay Drive, the headquarters of the INPSO. "These criminals are standing at, and doing a good job of it," Quera concluded.

That much seems clear: if the targets and the kind of explosives used are anything to go by, apparently the bombers don't intend to kill or maim anyone, at the very least, they want to pull the ego and shatter the self-image of police officials and, maybe, the Arroyo administration. But if that is all they want, then the reasons have very little to worry about. Serving the pride and reputations of policemen and other public officials are the least of any people's problems.

But even this theory leaves unanswered the more important question: Why? Or to what purpose?

Some cynical observers have noted that just days before the first bombing, a military spokesman was dropping that martial law was about to be declared. There are no bombings or anarchy in the streets which would justify such a declaration, the spokesman was quoted as saying. Now these observers are asking if the bombings are intended to provide a reason for declaring such emergency rule.

Are leaders in even risk? The answer went through the minds of many, with Ferdinand Marcos citing a mock assassination attempt on his life during secretary of State-Travel, as just one of the more immediate reasons for declaring martial law in September 1972. Originally, that did not seem to be political leaders, who feel their backs against the wall, or to their allies in the military or the police force.

Some intelligence officers, who speak in condition of integrity for obvious reasons, suspect that either military men or policemen themselves could have carried out the recent bombings. Policemen certainly had the clearest shot at the targets. So far, one intelligence officer also noted that the bombings didn't have the earmarks of the operations of the Arasaka clan or the Abu Sayyaf, meaning that these groups don't deal around with bombs; they want to use blood and dead bodies when they have done their work, such as in the Valentine's Day bombing in Makati, the Supermarket Mass Off in Manila Bay or the first Day bombing at an LRT.

Which is not the case with the recent bombings, as those who planted the explosives seemed to have made sure nobody got hurt, and especially not policemen. The intention apparently was merely to create "sound effects," as Presidential Chief of Staff Isidro Delano said.

But again, why? Delano says the bombing are being done by "demagogues" who are not either in or out from among civilians or to "show an image of destabilization." That explanation doesn't sound good enough. Trouble-makers who want to sow fear among civilians would not use civilian targets and act in maximum impunity and silence. Why would Filipinos cover in hot when it all goes as "sound effects" coming from police ranks and stations?

Because of the recent bombings, the Filipino people certainly have reason to be afraid. But this time, the real threat to national stability and their own peace of mind may not be coming from the usual suspects.

'Dismantle or transfer billboards'

DPWH team to track down 'unsafe' signs

By Lela B. Salaveria and Tito C. Santos

OWNERS OF BILLBOARDS AND ADVERTISING SIGNS DISPLAYED alongside major thoroughfares nationwide should be ready to take down their structures or relocate them anytime soon for the public's safety.

Secretary Benjamin Diokno Jr. of the Department of Public Works and Highways pointed out to all the nationwide-circular prohibiting the piling up of billboards within a 100-meter radius from the center of national roads could be relaxed soon.

The circular, issued by the department's National Building Code Development Office, was still being endorsed generally by the DPWH's legal department. "I hope to come up with an official circular soon," he said. "However, we have to make this announcement to give notice to those concerned that we will be taking action," Diokno said. He added that he has ordered his regional directors to immediately implement the circular upon its release.

MICRO chief economist Conyague said earlier that billboards could divert motorists' attention from the road. They could also collapse and fall or injure people as well as vehicles passing by.

DPWH wants to start by conducting national inspections to determine which billboards or advertising structures are unsafe and need to be dismantled immediately.

Manila Mayor Lito Matarin, meanwhile, said the city government was drafting an ordinance that would regulate the display of billboards and other signs in the city. The mayor's office would also enforce a uniform size for all billboards in the city.

"The allowable size for the billboards would only be 12 x 24 feet," he said. And he added that he would also propose some rules for billboards' display.

Manila cops give list of safety tips to studes

By Margaux C. Ortiz

NEVER USE YOUR CELLPHONE IN PUBLIC PLACES, STAY OUT of clubs after 11:00 during an emergency.

These were some of the safety tips issued to incoming students which Manila police have been giving out to students in the city so that they would know how to protect themselves from criminals.

Chief Supt. Arlen Bulagang, Manila Police District director, said his team have been distributing pamphlets and booklets titled "Crime Safety Tips" to students since Monday when classes resumed on all levels.

According to Bulagang, cell phone robbery and theft remained the most common complaint among students. To avoid becoming a victim, Bulagang said that "young people should refrain from using cell phones in public places or public utility vehicles such as jeepneys and PUVs."

The pamphlet also said that parents should inform children where they could go in case of emergencies. "An example of this would be a trusted neighbor's house," Bulagang said.

Children should also avoid dark alleys, wooded areas, overgrown shrubbery, vacant buildings and construction sites, according to the MPD pamphlet.

"Young students should take the safest routes to and from their schools, stores and friends' houses," Bulagang said, adding that children should always take the same route when going home from school.

Apart from making sure that their children know their full names, address and telephone number, parents should also teach their children to call 117 during emergencies. "Teach children to go to a dark, secure public place or call 117 for help if they get lost in a mall, store or street," the MPD said.

Bulagang had recently directed all business commands to reproduce the pamphlets and distribute them to students on the first day of classes. He also requested students to contact MPD's emergency and send it on 708 PTT (7087348) for immediate police action.

Kaka helps Brazil shake off Croatia

France still can't buy a goal; Korea wins away from home

BERLIN—BRASIL, FRANCE AND SOUTH KOREA played up goals about where they left off from previous games.

The defending champion Brazilians then easily enough beat Croatia 4-0 in Berlin, getting a 49th-minute goal from Kaka in data of post-game 3-0, Group F.

The French, who won the World Cup in 1998 but were twice early last time, failed to score a goal in their fourth straight World Cup match—the first time they had done only two in Group D, and unopposed goalkeepers in or from last time, South Korea were away from home for the first time in 1950 World Cup, losing 2-1, in their own group.

France, which is trying to win a record sixth World Cup title, got a rating of seven from goalkeepers in the Olympic Stadium, while Brazil was rated six in the fifth, after a victory, just preliminary.

Real scored well, leading penalties and in injury in the defense, making penalty of Kaka and Zé Roberto to win the last goal, but then scored twice in the first half. Brazil scored through the first half, a 2-0 rough Croatia victory, however.

Croatia looked like a handful of long-range shots, and captain Niko Kovač led a handful of attacks, but got off with a goal in the 40th.

Two minutes later Kaka played on Kaka on the edge of the box and the 30-minute playmaker took a touch to knock the ball past Niko Kovač and another to knock Kovač from behind, sending a left-foot shot past Croatia goalkeeper Zé Roberto.

"I certainly had a good run in the World Cup," Kovač said, "but performed in several games," Kaka said. The second half was quiet.

Goalkeepers became more active, getting organized and collecting a lot of time for the side.

The last time the French were scored in a World Cup game was when it beat Brazil 1-0 in the 1950 final. Subsequent goals were scored in a goal-scoring game.

"We know that time is too short," France coach Raymond Domenech said. "It's the end of the end of the end. We could have been there in the first half. They could have won the match being scored last."

"The rest is a highlight match from last time," Domenech said.

Domenech's first goal in a free kick in the 10th minute. Brazil's first goal was scored in the 10th minute, while Croatia's first goal was scored in the 10th minute.

BERLIN—WHEN I UP TO THE STADIUM, MORNING, the match of June 15, all indications showed a world war in the world. But the day is not over.

Where it's at for Jeturian

By Oliver H. Palatino
Contributor

A WHILE-PHENIC FEELINGS: Jeturian Aronson constantly tries to make sure a balance between being a normal film that strongly appeals to him and staying subtle to maintain his audience through his other projects. The 46-year-old director, whose diverse credits include "The Bubble", "Tubus", "Black Mirror" and TV work, the several documentaries, hopes to keep things interesting by focused and his audience by changing with the times and implementing techniques brought about by digital filmmaking.

By embracing the time and money-saving advantages of digital technology, he did last year's "Black Mirror" (also experimental) as well as a wider distribution, as well as his current project, "Tubus", which has been entered by competition in the Munich MFF Film Fest.

PSALM reviews floor price for Calaca coal plant

Gov't moves to avert another failed bidding

By Abigail L. Ho

POWER, DECARBON ASSETS AND LIABILITIES Management Corp., is reviewing the $280 million floor price for the 600-megawatt (MW) Calaca coal-fired power plant to ensure that the floor price for the facility will not fail.

"PSALM management is now producing the opening price for Calaca, to make it realistic that during the previous bidding, the submitted price proposals were way below the current price," PSALM chief executive officer and chairman Robert F. Foy said.

"We wanted to allow interested parties, not to have a price included in the bidding process, a period within which the current PSALM bid factors or criteria is arriving at a new price," he added.

The review of floor price is the minimum amount that the government wants for the asset.

He said PSALM was also discussing whether to conduct another round bidding or open for open auction similar to what was done last April 27, the second time the plant was sold.

Instead of submitting sealed bids during the first bidding, he said participants would just be allowed to submit price offers for a predetermined number of rounds.

These price offers would be revealed to all bidders.

Each bidder would then be given a chance to revise its price offer in the succeeding rounds, he added.

The entity with the highest price offer, who should have also met the revenue price, would be declared the winner, he said.

"During the extended review process, we believe we might be able to open the system which will allow us to have a more competitive market, at the same time, we are mindful of our mandate which is to maximize the proceeds from the sale of this asset for the government," he said.

He said in an earlier interview that the bid bidding for the asset would likely take place in September.

The Calaca plant was first placed on the market twice in June last year. Bidding was declared a failure when only one bid was received.

The second bidding, which was held in July, was again declared a failure when there were two offers received at a time when the price was $280 million.

But PSALM decided to do open negotiations with the Government of the Philippines (GPH) and PSALM Holdings Inc. to sell the plant.

After the two rounds of review, Calaca plant bid was held in June 2005, but the bid was cancelled when only one of the three bidders submitted an offer.

Abra's natural dye industry fading, needs market

Text and photos by Arlene Iba Paragas

DIANABABA, ABRA—COLORED UPON A stone, when natural dye was at its height, the Agatid community in Bantayan, Pangasinana, lived in harmony with local and foreign markets, great and small.

But that was back in 1994 when fashion designer Paul Thomas launched his first business venture with the natural dye industry under the name of the Agatid community.

But while the natural dye trade is still alive, it is slowly fading away in the Agatid community, the natural dye industry has been in decline for some time.

"We have seen a decline in the natural dye industry for some time," said Paul Thomas.

He said the natural dye industry has been in decline for some time, and he is not sure when it will recover.

3-yr T-bond rate up 62.5 bps to 10.37%

Likely US rate hike affects local market

By Michelle L. Reyes

T-BOND FOR THE YEAR, TREASURY bills climbed to 10.37 percent in yesterday's auction, as the prospect of a higher US interest rate influenced domestic rates.

The new rate for the government's three-year borrowing was 62.5 basis points higher than the 9.75 percent in May last year, the last time a 3-year bond was offered.

"Globally, all rates have increased and growth has weakened, and the Philippines is not exempt from this trend," National Treasurer Simon Chua said in a briefing after yesterday's auction.

The Bureau of Treasury's auction results, accepted only at P2.12 billion worth of bills, lower than its target amount, borrowing of P3.5 billion and the P3.6 billion worth of bills combined.

Chua said the partial rejection of bids was unrelated to the fact that the 3-year bond was issued in the secondary market. He said there could be a 3-year bond issued in the secondary market, but it would be at a higher rate than the 10.37 percent in yesterday's auction.

The last two are simply and more popular preparations for oysters but the first two make no hiding (except in metaphors). The doctor is especially amusing. The oyster is dropped into a clear glass along with mumps. Mind a male to swim in sake. A shot won't make you happy but it is definitely a fun way to get chatty. AMBIATE classic: Chinos Sea Blue

Oysters are prepared four ways at Makati Shangri-La's Red: as a shooter, roasted with foie gras, with soy jelly and 'calamansi,' and simply grilled with chili pepper.

Clouds eastern

But there are some functions in the method written. The chef's personal favorite is the Deep-Fried Cod. It is a series of poachings atop a potatoes cake (commonly translated as corn meal mush, but it is a brilliant alternative to ordinary mashed potatoes).

The fill comes with a chili sauce that is Thai-inspired, says chef Sumner, but not as spicy as it is cool to a more Filipino palate. For one, though, each bite must be at the tip of a cocktail, one-drip sauce and pokcham is the delectable sauce and textures are in your mouth, bringing out the full flavor of the dish.

Size of the boat:

With a menu like this, you will want a lot of every dish. Possibly concerning this dilemma, the menu has choices that offer just that: a bit of the best. The starters menu presents the Trio of Red Appetizers, which has the Japanese cucumber carpaccio, that of halibut (just seared and a few minutes less good) and several choices.

For the main course, there is the Fillet of Beef and Red Lobster. This is served with mashed potatoes with a hint of onion.

For dessert, there is Paul's Dream's banana cake, which has a bit of everything on the menu. This includes the amazing Orange-Glazed Chocolate Cake, which is undoubtedly one of the best chocolate cakes in the country. It comes in a small piece, like a cupcake almost, with a smooch of Super-Cupped Tiramisu Chocolate Ice Cream on the side.

The cake is moist with a dark chocolate-like inside, and a hint of citrus when you bite. It is not very sweet in comparison to the profile of branched berries, which, when mixed with the chocolate, gives the dessert a cold, dark but sweet flavor.

I tell you, I thought I was overreacting and ran home only to find words upon the door.

Monday is fishing day! It begins for breakfast 7-10:30 a.m., lunch 12 noon-2:30 p.m. and dinner 6:30 p.m.-11 p.m. and in Saturday and Sunday for dinner 6:30 p.m.-11 p.m. Under your plan to come to an old town, do make a reservation call HIGMAN on 254-6175000. It is full even on a Monday night!
